Mid-20th Century Modern Architecture

Mid-twentieth-century Modern architecture is defined by its distinct break from classical and historical styles and forms. Common features of Modern style houses include simple geometric forms, a lack of ornamentation, expanses of sliding glass doors, fixed windows, and clerestory windows connecting inside spaces to the outside, and the use of simplified roof shapes, often with deep roof overhangs to shield the interior from the sun.

Mid-century Modern architecture in Truro consists primarily of modest single-family houses, many built as summer houses, sometimes with outbuildings such as studios or guest quarters. Most were sensitively sited in secluded locations, with minimal formal landscaping. The buildings typically rest on concrete pad foundations or on pilings or are cantilevered from raised concrete foundations, "floating" above their sites. The buildings either blend in organically or stand out as objects within the surrounding setting. House designs embodied a rational simplicity with organic plans derived from the modern family lifestyle of the time. Exterior elevations are often clad in vertical board wood siding; in traditional clapboard or wood shingles; or sometimes in more unusual products such as plywood or fiberboard (e.g. Homasote and Masonite); and occasionally employ concrete. In most cases, wood exterior walls have a natural stain, or are painted white.

According to the National Register Nomination Form referenced below, Modern houses can be divided into three types or forms: Box, Geometric, and Prefabricated/Semi-Prefabricated. The Box type, as its name suggests, is the most minimal expression of the Modern style. Box-type houses have a simple rectangular one-story form with flat or lowpitched shed roofs; the form often emphasizes horizontality. The Geometric type consists of one or two-story houses that employ more complicated geometric forms. Geometric-type houses have flat, shed and/or gable roofs of varying pitches. In some cases, separate elements are connected by decks or breezeways. The third Modern house type employed prefabricated components to reduce construction costs, including Carl Koch-designed Techbuilt, and later Deck Houses. They typically have lowpitched gable roofs, post and beam construction, deeply-projecting eaves, split-level entrances, and large expanses of glass.<sup>1</sup> Not all Modern buildings fit neatly into one of these categories; some have features of more than one category.

Modern Style History in Truro and the Outer Cape

Mid-century Modern-style houses were built on the Outer Cape mostly between 1929 through 1979. The origins of the Modern movement can be traced to a variety of sources in both Europe and the US. Prominent among them is the Bauhaus, a design cooperative and teaching center founded in 1919 in Dessau, Germany. Its founder and first director, Walter Gropius (1883-1969), like many European architects, artists and intellectuals, came to the US fleeing the rise of Nazism. In 1937, Gropius was named Chair of the Architecture Department at Harvard's Graduate School of Design (GSD). He brought other modern architects to the school, including Marcel Breuer, and they reconceived the curriculum, educating a generation of architects and future professors in the teachings of Modernism.

Modern residential architecture came to Truro in the 1930s. The Modern style was popular both for its relatively inexpensive construction costs and the academic awareness by architects, design-builders and their patrons of Modernism's virtues. A group of three local selftaught design-builders, who became lifelong friends, were instrumental in introducing Midcentury Modern architecture to the Outer Cape: Jack Phillips, Jack Hall, and Hayden Walling. Starting in the 1940s, along with prominent architects, intellectuals and artists from Boston and New York, they created a summer and yearround community that embraced Modern experimentation.

In 1929, John "Jack" C. Phillips, Jr. (1908-2002) inherited about 800 acres of ocean-side land that straddled the Truro-Wellfleet town line. Phillips was exposed to Modern architectural ideas from travels in Europe and studying at the GSD for a year in 1939, two years after Walter Gropius and Marcel Breuer arrived at the GSD. Phillips built the first simple Modern summer houses on the Outer Cape. In the 1940s, he sold some of his land to prominent Modern architects who themselves designed summer houses (including Breuer's own Wellfleet house (1945-48) in what is now the Cape Cod National Seashore.

John "Jack" Hughes Hall (1913-2003), another self-taught design-builder, bought 180 acres on Bound Brook Island in the 1930s, where additional Modern houses were eventually built. He started a design-build business in 1946 that included real estate sales and rental properties, and became a leasing agent for Hayden Walling and Jack Phillips, among others. Hayden Walling (1917-1981) was the son of prominent socialites William English Walling (1877-1936) and Russian-born Anna Strunsky Walling (1878-1964) who summered on the Outer Cape. Hayden Walling also became a self-taught designbuilder. In the 1950s and 60s, Walling designed and/or built at least 13 houses, studios and renovations, many of which were built on land that Walling bought from Jack Phillips. He also built houses designed by other Modern architects.

In addition to houses designed by Breuer, Phillips, Hall, and Walling, noted Modernist architects came to the Outer Cape, including Serge Chermayeff, Charles Jencks, Olav Hammarstrom, Henry Hebbeln, Dan Kiley, Anne Ozbekhan, and Paul Krueger.

The local design-build tradition was carried on by Wellfleet-resident Charlie Zehnder who became the most prolific design-builder of Modern houses in Truro. His work and that of many other mid-century modernist architects was inspired by aspects of Frank Lloyd Wright's view of the house as organically evolved from and interrelated with its site.

Survey Documentation

This report is part of the Truro Historical Commission's documentation of 20th century properties, including Truro's important Mid-20th Century Modern Houses. It updates the 2009-2013 Community-wide Historic Survey and was funded with the assistance of the Town of Truro's Community Preservation Act revenues. The project will provide important information for updating Truro's Local Comprehensive Plan and will inform homeowners and future buyers about the historic significance of their properties. Using the Massachusetts Historical Commission (MHC)'s survey format, this historic survey information will be posted on the MHC website along with Truro's other historic resources: https://mhc-macris.net

Ponds Moderns

The Ponds Moderns Area is a cluster of Midcentury Modern summer cottages built around Slough, Horseleech and Round Ponds in the southeast corner of Truro. The Area lies completely within the Cape Cod National Seashore (CCNS) and borders Wellfleet where there are additional Modern houses. The Ponds Modern houses are accessed by a system of unpaved sand roads that meander between the ponds. The Ponds Area was largely cleared of trees, as was much of Truro during 18th and 19th century settlement but has become reforested in the 20th century with scrub pine and oaks. As noted above, Modern houses were often intended to blend into the environment. In this Area, most of the houses are largely obscured from view from the roads, and only minimally visible from the ponds.

The collection of Modern houses around Horseleech, Slough and Round Ponds represent a unique concentration in Truro of both high-style architect-designed Modern houses and more modest houses designed by local design-builders

Jack Phillips and Hayden Walling. The houses were all built by, and initially occupied by, architects, designbuilders, artists and intellectuals inspired by Modern architecture's possibilities in this remote setting. Many pre-dated the creation of the Cape Cod National Seashore in 1959-1960.

Erlinda-Tryworks-Gospel Path Moderns

The Erlinda-Tryworks-Gospel Path Moderns Area is located within three large subdivisions roughly bounded by Castle Road, the Little Pamet River, Rt. 6 and Meetinghouse Road. The Area was likely cleared of trees, as was much of Truro during 18th and 19th century settlement. The hilly topography is now largely reforested with scrub pine and oak trees, the winding roads are mostly unpaved, and most properties are minimally landscaped, leaving an overall natural setting. The 21 houses scattered across these three subdivisions represent both modest and highstyle examples of Mid-century Modern domestic architecture.

Schmidt-Gehrie House, Designer/Builder Jack Schmidt, 1969

In 1962, Cape Lands, Inc. recorded two adjacent subdivisions that spanned from Castle Road to Meetinghouse Road with a total of 84 lots. The Wellfleet-based company had purchased multiple tracts of land in 1961 from Marjorie and Antone Duarte, Jr The third subdivision within which Area Moderns are located borders the 1962 subdivision to the north and is connected by Erlinda Road. In 1970, William A. Joseph of Truro sold 16.35 acres to Eleanor and Joseph Schoonejongen, also of Truro. The following year, the Schoonejongens recorded a 25-lot subdivision of this land). Many of the first owners of houses in this Area reflect Truro's increasing popularity as the summer or year-round home of artists and intellectuals.

Resolution Road Moderns

The Resolution Road Moderns Area consists of six contiguous parcels that extend along the south and west sides of Cathedral Hill - a small hill behind Corn Hill accessed from Castle Road to the east. Five houses are located within a 1966 17-lot Cathedral Hill subdivision and the sixth house is contiguous to that subdivision. These houses all have views towards Corn Hill Beach and Cape Cod Bay and were the first subdivision lots to be built upon in the 1970s and early 1980s. These houses all employed character-defining features of Mid-century Modern architecture, representing late examples of the style. Cathedral Hill was likely cleared of trees, as was much of Truro during 18th and 19th century settlement. The Area is now reforested with a mix of scrub pine and oaks. These six houses are set within these reforested tracts with minimal formal landscaping. The houses are largely obscured from view from Resolution Road, although some are partially visible from across the Little Pamet River on Corn Hill Road.

All but one of the Modern houses in this Area were built on parcels that were part of the 17-lot Cathedral Hill Subdivision Plan recorded by S. Joseph and Zena Nemetz in 1966. They had purchased a 19.8acre tract of land from Marion Roy in 1964. That deed anticipated the subdivision and included a requirement that all but three lots must be at least one acre in size. The Nemetzs were very active in real estate development in Truro, Wellfleet and Eastham from the late 1950s into the 1980s. The sixth Modern house was built on a parcel that was also originally owned by Marion Roy and shows as owned by Laurence Sharp on the 1966 Nemetz subdivision plan.

Cape Cod Modern: Midcentury Architecture and Community on the Outer Cape, Peter McMahon and Christine Cipriani, Metropolis Books, 2014.

In the summer of 1937, Walter Gropius, founder of the Bauhaus and a professor at Harvard's new Graduate School of Design, rented a house on Planting Island, near the base of Cape Cod. There, he and his wife, lse, hosted a festive reunion of Bauhaus masters and students who had recently emigrated from Europe: Marcel Breuer, Herbert Bayer, László Moholy-Nagy, Xanti Schawinsky and others. Together they feasted, swam and planned their futures on a new continent, all sensing they were on the cusp of a momentous new phase in their lives. Yet even as they moved on, the group never lost its connection to the Cape Cod coast. Several members returned, when they had the means, to travel farther up the peninsula, rent cabins, buy land and design their ideal summer homes. Thus began a chapter in the history of modern architecture that has never been told--until now. The flow of talent onto the Outer Cape continued and, within a few years, the area was a hotbed of intellectual currents from New York, Boston, Cambridge and the country's top schools of architecture and design. Avant-garde homes began to appear in the woods and on the dunes; by the 1970s, there were about 100 modern houses of interest here. In this story, we meet, among others, the Boston Brahmins Jack Phillips and Nathaniel Saltonstall; the self-taught architect, carpenter and painter Jack Hall; the Finn Olav Hammarström, who had worked for Alvar Aalto; and the prolific Charlie Zehnder, who brought the lessons of both Frank Lloyd Wright and Brutalism to the Cape. Initially, these designers had no clients; they built for themselves and their families, or for friends sympathetic to their ideals. Their homes were laboratories, places to work through ideas without spending much money. The result of this ferment is a body of work unlike any other, a regional modernism fusing the building traditions of Cape Cod fishing towns with Bauhaus concepts and postwar experimentation.
