Some learning materials will be available for each student to purchase.

Transform Memories into 21 Century Art

Donna Mahan

IN-PERSON TRURO CENTRAL SCHOOL

Class Begins October 16, 2023 (7 weeks)

Mondays 6:00-8:00PM

$125.00/$120.00 (Sen. Discount)

Explore new ways to utilize glass found throughout our homes and beyond. Working with glass that had a former life, you will discover methods in design and techniques such as cutting glass, grinding, copper foil and soldering. Through demonstrations, lectures, and your hands-on projects, you will complete a beautiful glass panel (approximately 8x8"). You will gain a good base to continue similar projects beyond the class.

Please consider bringing small personal treasures that may be included in your project, i.e. jewelry parts, pieces of china, and shells, just to name a few. You will transform memories into a 21st century art panel.

Materials: I will provide most of the supplies needed.
Fee includes all materials except what is listed below

Materials for you to bring:

N95 mask (used when soldering)
Heavy working glove (used when cutting glass)
Personal treasures to consider incorporating (see above paragraph)
Box for your working project (shoe box size)
Must wear closed shoes for safety purposes

Circuit Training

Kathy Stetson

IN-PERSON TRURO CENTRAL SCHOOL

Class Begins: October 16, 2023 (6 weeks)

(No class week of 11/13/2023)

Mondays, 5:30-6:30 pm

$60.00/$55.00 (Sen. Discount)

Circuit training is a fun way to build strength and stamina. In this class you will perform a series of strength and cardio exercises, alternating quickly between them. After you complete the circuit, you take a brief rest and repeat. Because the pace is quick, you will get your heart rate up, while also developing your upper and lower body muscles. Overall, the intensity is moderate- you will breathe hard and break a sweat, but you won't be going all out or huffing and puffing. Intensity and repetitions can be varied for the individual to provide a safe, effective workout for all levels.

Class Begins October 18, 2023(6 weeks)

Wednesdays,6:00-8:00 pm
$85.00/$80.00 (Sen. Discount)includes materials

(No class 11/22)

In this class we'll be making a variety of arts and crafts that can be given as small tokens of love and care, sent as mail art, used as stocking stuffers, or as objects to brighten your own home. This will be a low-key, accessible class for learners of all levels: absolute beginners; those who have some experience and are looking to revisit artmaking/printmaking; and those who are skilled and need a couple of hours of committed time each week to work in a collaborative and inspiring space. You'll have the opportunity to make gift tags, linocut prints (to be framed, turned into cards, or both), miniature books, and ornaments, along with other types of prints that don't require a press. If you fall in love with a particular process, there will be freedom to continue that project. Classes will include introductions to each project and materials, along with individual support and instruction as needed. If you've been longing to create and don't know where to start, have been feeling stuck in a parallel creative process, or just want to make and give personal gifts, come join us!

Lynn Stanley is an artist, writer, cat person, and friend of birds. For 15+ years she developed creative programs at the Provincetown Art Association and Museum, and has taught and learned from people of all ages, kindergarten to elders. She knows what it's like to feel blocked and also how to support others who find artmaking a scary or intimidating prospect. Lynn loves working with color, making simple book forms, prints, shadow boxes, and handmade gifts. Her work can be seen at www.bisforbird.com
